Meet Jeremy Kaufman

Mr. Kaufman holds a BSEE and a MSEE from Drexel University and an MBA from the University of Maryland. He has over 30 years' experience in the Engineering and Technical fields, most of which is in the defense and intelligence sector with a specialization in communications, signal processing and software development. He was a co-founder of Praxis Engineering Technologies Inc., and served as Vice President and CTO through 2017. He is currently President of Praxis Products, a small company focused on the application of software-defined radios and embedded software for high-value defense and intelligence applications.